

I believe that the decision to allow media companies to own a greater share of a market is a massive blow to our democracy. It will significantly impair the ability of the american people to have access to varied opinions. Further, it hurts the existence of investigative, unbiased journalism. It brings closer the day when all information (TV, radio, print) we receive is filtered through one or two companies who only have their own interests at heart. I urge the FCC to reconsider this grievous decision.
